Waiwa Mudena is KWM's signature social mobility program for First Nations law students.

Designed with and for First Nations law students, this evidence-based program takes a long-term, holistic and flexible approach to increasing First Nations representation in the legal sector. Our immersive work placement and skills development initiative is underpinned by insightful exposure to a range of legal practices, tailored training modules, strong mentoring, unique learning opportunities, expansive networking and wide-ranging ongoing support.

Why Waiwa Mudena? Waiwa Mudena is a phrase in the language of the grandmother of the artist whose artwork is reflected in our program logo, Robby Wirramanda. Robby uses the phrase to mean 'to rise up and go after'. The language of Robby's grandmother is Wergaia.
